General Meagher at St. Paul, Minnesota.

[illegible] St. Paul [illegible]

Ingersoll's Hall was well filled [illegible] night by an attentive audience to listen to the speech [illegible] Thomas Francis Meagher. The [illegible] as an orator are so well known that it [illegible] for us to speak of the address [illegible] delivery. The address was quite lengthy, and we have room for but a few extracts. We give [illegible] relating to political issues and the duties of [illegible] to their adopted country.

[illegible] now that the war is over, what should be the duty of every citizen to the National Executive, seeing that the war was the violent denial of that reverence and subordination which is due to the Chief Magistracy of the nation, and without which the power of the people, vested in the Executive, is grievously compromised if it be not [illegible] impaired. I care not upon what platform he may have been elected. I care not what party may have placed him at the head of national affairs—I contend that the Chief Magistrate should have the unqualified support of every citizen of the Republic, and that this support should be independent of and superior to every political consideration. It is a tame and niggardly patriotism, indeed, which professes to support the Executive as long as the Executive is right—that is, as long as it pleases certain parties and makes certain nominations, but withdraws its support and goes into opposition when the Executive fails to satisfy the politicians of one description or another, and overlooks the immense service of Snooks and Suiggins in the distribution of Federal patronage.

Had we less criticism of the men we set over us in office, and a heartier chivalry in our relations with them, it would be all the more advantageous for the commonwealth, all the happier for the public servants, and all the more creditable to ourselves.

Had Abraham Lincoln, in the terrible days in which he bore, with a patient heroism, the weightiest burdens that have ever been imposed upon a public officer, been cheered in the agony of his official cares by a moiety of that love and homage which his assassination called forth, and which with the bounteousness of the waters sent from the desert by the prophet's wand, overflowed the country, making it fertile in noble thoughts and a loftier regard for the administrators to the national estate—had this been the case, think how much easier his great task would have been, how much less confident and defiant the rebellion would have proved, and how much more respectably certain important personages, at the other end of the Atlantic cable, would have demeaned themselves toward us during the difficulties of the Nation. If I venture to impress these views with special force upon my fellow citizens of Irish birth, it is for the reason that devotion to their political leaders and fidelity to party obligations is of a more intense character with them than any other people, and their actions upon public questions is usually controlled by their partialities for the political school to which they devote themselves, and their fatuitous faith in its impossibility ever to go wrong. So far then, for what I conceive should be the relations of every citizen to the National Executive, and the spirit in which these relations should be maintained.

The next question suggested by the events of the day and the new condition in which the Southern States find themselves is in relation the terms and disposition which the people of the loyal States should extend to the former, and the good will and friendship they should manifest toward those whose manly acceptance of what they consider to be their adverse fate, entitles them to the respect and consideration of their more fortunate rivals in the field. The answer to this question is already set forth in the conditions of the surrender at Appomattox Court House. It becomes the people of the North, and it seems to me it should be a sacred obligation with them, to treat the people of the South with an honorable propriety and a gallant generosity. A policy or bearing other than that indicated in the military surrender will counteract the success of our arms, keep the wounds of the South inflamed, produce an irreparable alienation, and overshadow with opprobrium the laurels of the North. Defeated as the South has been, in its great scheme to install another Government and nationality on this continent and win the royalty of the Mississippi—having fought in the teeth of the most crushing odds and disabilities with soldiership that establishes them in history as the most masterly revolutionists of any age or country—now that this dazzling project has been defeated and the National Government resumes its sway with a weightier authority than ever it held before, and an admitted superiority over the oldest and grandest Powers, it should be the aim and object of the people of the north and west so to conduct themselves in the social and political relations with the South that the latter, even in the hour of their capitulation, and amid the havoc that has swept their fields and cities, shall be induced to entertain one regret only—and that the manly and generous regret that they ever struck a blow against the United States and coveted the humiliation of our flag. Nor should we be less liberal—less just in fact—to our black comrades of the battle field. By their desperate fidelity to the fortunes of this nation in many a fierce tempest of the war—a fidelity all the more heroic that they fought in chains and with the devotion of martyrs repaid with torrents of generous blood, the proscription and wicked bondage in which, under the sanction of the stars and stripes, they had been for generations held—by their desperate fidelity and splendid soldiership, such as at Fort Wagner and at Port Hudson, gave to their bayonets an irresistible electricity, the black heroes of the Union army have not only entitled themselves to liberty but to citizenship, and the Democrat who would deny them the rights for which their wounds and glorified colors so eloquently plead, is unworthy to participate in the greatness of the nation whose authority these disfranchised soldiers did so much to vindicate.

In speaking thus I am well aware that I run counter to the prejudices of the conservative politician, the great end and aim of whose statesmanship, or whatever else his public talk and labors may be called, is to consecrate the errors or misfortunes of the past, and invoke the sanctions of public law and an austere patriotism to stamp the civil disabilities and social proscription of the black with a fatal immortality. But in speaking of what I conceive should be the duties and relations of Irishmen to the United States, in reference to the new political conditions upon which they have to plant themselves squarely, is unavoidable, and if I incur the disapprobation of any enlightened and patriotic gentlemen in giving a frank expression to my convictions, all that I can say is that I believe the world moves, and I don't intend to stand still and be overwhelmed as a fossil in its progress. The independence I assert for myself I earnestly entreat every one of my countrymen in America to cultivate. It is full time for them to emancipate themselves from the control of the politicians who have held them in an ignoble captivity for many years, and to whose vulgar dictation they surrender the intelligence and high spirit which should [illegible] to them as their citizenship. [illegible] as the citizenship naturally is, it becomes a reproach when the spirit it should inspire, the manhood which should accompany it, the healthy boldness of mind that belongs to it, and should never cease to nourish, adorn and dignify it, [illegible] compromised in political servility, and the [illegible] discipline of party usurps the prerogative of an independent man.

The National Banking System

From the [illegible]

[illegible] all [illegible] the outbreak of the great rebellion it became evident that the war could not be carried on upon a strictly specie basis [illegible] must sooner or later resort to the [illegible] paper money It was wisely determined not to use the currency of the State banks of different value in different States based upon every possible kind of security and some upon no security limited and governed by diverse laws and in some States no limitation being placed upon the amount to be issued The Northern banks as a rule were loyal and ready to aid the Government for a sufficient consideration, notwithstanding it required some pretty severe skirmishing between them and the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain, at first, the requisite loans The banks were anxious that the Government should use their paper but it was plain that the Government should not put itself in their power and that the necessary purchases of supplies and war material at all points could not be made with such currency nor the troops satisfactorily paid with it

The result was an appeal to the people direct for loans the issue of greenbacks whose redemption was based upon the nation's faith to meet the present emergency and finally national bank notes based upon United States bonds, and guaranteed by the Government redeemable at all the great commercial centres and of nearly equal value in all parts of the country as a permanent circulation, to supersede in the end State circulation and greenbacks with a national banking system to provide for the circulation and redemption of the notes and supply proper and safe depositories of the Government funds, and provide fiscal agents to be used in the collection and disbursement of the revenues levied to pay the war debt

But why not have issued greenbacks direct upon which no interest is paid by Government instead of guaranteeing the notes of National Banks? The answer to this question is forcibly put by the Secretary of the Treasury, then Comptroller of the Currency, in his report to Congress at the last session and in the same connection he answers some of the general objections to paper money and to any connection of the Government with its issue He says

"Paper money has been found to be useful or rather an absolute necessity in all commercial countries for the convenient transaction of business and as a circulating representative of value too large to be represented by coin Although the fruitful cause of great evils, by reason of its unregulated use, and of its uncertain and frequently deceptive character, the general utility of it can hardly be questioned Now, what is needed in a paper circulating medium is, that it should be convertible into coin, that it should be sufficient in amount to answer the purposes of legitimate business, that it should not, on the one hand by being over issued, encourage extravagance and speculation, and give an artificial and unreliable value to property, nor, on the other hand by being reduced below the proper standard, interrupt business and unsettle values. It should be supplied to just the extent of the demands of a healthy trade It should be increased as the regular business of the country may require its increase and be diminished as the proper demand for it is diminished.

"It is not pretended that banks of issue have furnished this kind of circulation. Bank notes, with few exceptions, have been convertible into coin when there was no demand for coin, and inconvertible when there was They have too generally been issued for the exclusive benefit of the bankers, and not for the convenience of the public and they have encouraged speculation, when their true mission was to facilitate trade It has been the bane of a bank note circulation that it has been expanded by the avarice of the bankers, and contracted by the distrust that over-issues have created.

"Now this objection to a bank note circulation applies with much greater force to Government issues There is always inducement enough for banks to keep up a full circulation and against excessive issues there are the restrictions of law and the liability to redeem Government notes in the issue thereof, would be regulated only by the necessities of the Government or the interests of the party in power At one time they might be increased altogether beyond the needs of commerce and trade, thereby enhancing prices and inducing speculation, at another, they might be so reduced as to embarrass business and precipitate financial disasters They would be incomparably worse in this respect than a bank note currency because the power that should control circulation would be the power that furnishes it Supplied by an authority not in sympathy with trade they would not be accommodated to the requirements of trade They might be the fullest in volume when there was the least demand for a full circulation and the most contracted when there was a healthy demand for an increase They would eventually become an undesirable circulation, because there would be no way in which the redemption of them could be enforced, they would be a dangerous circulation because they would be under the control of political parties an unreliable circulation because having no connection with trade and commerce they would not be regulated by their necessities

There are objections to all kinds of paper money but in some form, it is a commercial necessity and no form has yet been contrived so little objectionable as that which is authorized by the National Currency act Under this act the Government performs its proper functions by exercising one of its constitutional powers for the regulation of commerce by fixing the maximum of bank note circulation, securing its solvency and giving to it uniformity [illegible]

The National system [illegible] of the banking system of the country At first the bank [illegible] looked upon it with distrust [illegible] but gradually they have [illegible] of its advantages [illegible] to accept the State banks [illegible] was necessary [illegible] banks converted [illegible] depreciated [illegible] highly appreciated by the change

In Massachusetts it [illegible] credit of fifty [illegible] in a [illegible] act for the change of her State banks to National associations In the city of Philadelphia the organization of the first National bank and she was also the first city to complete the conversion of all her State banks to National associations New York was delayed a year by Governor Seymour pocketing the enabling act passed a year ago last winter but since the passage of the law of last winter her banks have almost made up for the lost time by the rapidity of their changing The great West has availed itself of the law to the fullest extent and even the South has called for banks at all prominent points as fast as our armies could get a foothold during the war and since it is ended there is no place of importance in all the South that has not its application on file for a National Bank, showing the ready appreciation of our Southern friends of the system, their confidence in the Government and their willingness to invest their means in its securities No banks have yet completed their organization in any of the Pacific States, but several are now in process of organization in Oregon and California and one in Washington Territory Utah Nevada Arizona and New Mexico, have papers on file in short there is no State or Territory in which banks are not organized or in process of organization

To Mr Chase is principally due the organization of the system and to the present Secretary of the Treasury, Mr McCulloch the present improved law, and the skill and wisdom with which the system was brought into successful operation up to the time when he turned its management over to the present Comptroller, Hon Freeman Clark of New York who has so ably continued what his predecessor had begun It would be unjust in this connection to omit to mention S T Howard, Esq Deputy Comptroller for whose wise counsel and assistance both Mr McCulloch and Mr Clarke acknowledge themselves to have been greatly indebted

For the results obtained the country has reason to congratulate itself

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 29, 1865.

The State Fair

The past several weeks of rain and gloom were succeeded yesterday by a day of glorious sunshine. All who had of late been desponding about the prospect of good weather for the State Fair next week, were at once elated with the promise that after all, the season appointed for the Fair would be quite as propitious as any could wish, and that the State exhibition of this year which has been looked forward to with so much interest, would prove as successful as the people of the whole state had hoped to make it. If we have bright and sunny skies from this time until next week there is no reason why any should hesitate to attend the fair. If the weather remains clear till the close of the coming week, we do not see what there is to prevent the Fair now impending from being more successful and more satisfactory to the people than ever before. From the beginning of summer the matter has had the earnest attention of the officers of the Society. The newspapers of the State have taken a deeper interest in the coming Fair than they ever manifested on any similar preceding occasion. The whole subject has been laid before the people in a great variety of ways during the past four months, and now it is to depend on them—on their attendance and the interest they feel in it, whether the Fair of this year is to be better in all respects than any of its predecessors. Too many persons cannot possibly attend. The greater part of our population particularly that of this valley, should be there. We want competition in every department of Agricultural and Mechanical industry. In this manner the general interest that ought to be felt in the Fair will be kept from flagging from the beginning to the close of the exhibition.

The object of the Fair should be kept sedulously in view by the people who attend. Every farmer ought to pay particular attention to the several kinds of stock which may be on exhibition, so as to ascertain for himself which are best adapted to his purposes. In the general absence of methodical farming in Oregon, we cannot yet expect so much interest to attach to the growing and exhibition of the various kinds of grain, vegetables, &c., as is manifested in the production of stock. Farm management has not yet been made a specialty with many in Oregon, though stock-growing is receiving considerable attention. The best animals of all kinds now in the State will be seen at the Fair, and some of our farmers will have an opportunity to contrast the inferior breeds which they have long been accustomed to, with the better and more profitable kinds.

Every farmer, too, should look about him at the Fair to ascertain whether he cannot improve his implements of husbandry. Good farming largely depends on having good tools. Enquiry should be made also for the best kinds of seeds, and if a farmer can find anything in this line superior to what he has been using for general planting, he should take measures to secure some of it so that he may thereby eventually improve his crops. Great improvement may be made in this manner.

The time of the Fair, so long looked forward to, is now at hand. The weather promises well, and we ought to have an interesting exhibition. Let everybody attend. The Fair of this year can be, and we doubt not, will be better than ever before. Let all classes of our people be there.

THE DISTRICT SCHOOL.—We are glad to know that the Directors of the District School have adopted a rule requiring the teachers in all the departments to be in attendance from the ringing of the first bell in the morning until the school is dismissed in the evening, including of course the hour of recreation at noon. This is right and proper for several reasons. All the time the children are permitted or expected to be within the precincts of the school, the teachers ought to be present to supervise and take cognizance of their conduct. When the child is beyond the sight of the parent the control and responsibility of the teacher ought to begin. During the half hour between bells in the morning and the hour of recreation at noon, if the teachers are not present, the building, fences, furniture and books are liable to be injured or destroyed. The vicious and immoral have full swing to propagate and inculcate their wicked practices and habits throughout the circle of their playmates.

This is an important matter. Of what avail is it that a boy may be crammed with all the learning of the school, if at the same time by evil contact and example in the hours of play, he has lost his purity and innocence? In our desire to excel in knowledge and smartness, we are apt to overlook the culture of the heart. Knowledge without goodness is a positive evil. This is beautifully illustrated by the Emir, Abd-El-Kader: "A drop of rain falling into the mouth of an oyster produces a pearl—in the mouth of a viper, poison."

Let every poor parent who sends his child to our District School, have cause to know that his little one is in safe hands. That his teachers are persons of high moral culture, duly impressed with the responsibility of the solemn duty they have undertaken, and resolutely determined to discharge it, whether at books or play, in science or morals. We hope the Directors will maintain the position they have taken, and that no one will fear contamination with the morals of the District School.

THE WAY OF IT.—Not long ago we remarked that the Copperheads seem to desire negro suffrage, judging by their continual agitation of the subject. We said further, that if they do want it, they are taking the very way to get it, and that if they do not want it they had better keep silent. The Confederate Democrat don't understand this and asks us to explain. We will try to enlighten the Democrat a little. It will be remembered that a certain political party once known by the name "Democratic," undertook to be the especial guardian of an infamous thing called human slavery. This party in its zeal for the "institution" would for a long time tolerate no opposition to it. Slavery was to be spread over the whole country, and every man who said nay, if caught South of Mason and Dixon's line, was summarily hung. At last they brought things to such a pass that a man could not say a word in Congress against slavery without being put in peril of his life. The people finally got tired of this sort of thing and would bear it no longer. But the devotees of slavery would not abate a jot of their insolence, nor cease to press the "peculiar institution" forward at all times, and the result is, they find their intemperate zeal has utterly destroyed their idol. Thus these adherents of slavery procured its abolition. Now if they keep on, they will finally enfranchise the negro in the same way in which they abolished slavery. They agitated the one till they lost; now if they agitate the other on the same principles they will finally lose again. That is to say, if they ever push the matter so far as to mob and hang men simply for speaking in favor of negro suffrage, as they did when men spoke against slavery, a reaction will be sure to come which will overwhelm them again as completely as it has just been done. Perhaps the Democrat can now understand what we mean by saying that if itself and its guerrilla associates do not want negro suffrage they had better keep silent. Had they not disturbed slavery, there would have been no abolition; if they let the negro suffrage question alone, the blacks will not generally vote. These fellows, the "Democrats" have not been very fortunate of late in their undertakings, and if they want things to go about right, they had better leave politics entirely alone.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 22.

Wisconsin Politics.

MADISON, Sept. 19.—The Democratic State Convention yesterday nominated Harrison C. Hobart for Governor. The platform endorses President Johnson's restoration policy on the basis of the Federal Constitution, and pledges unqualified support thereto; opposes negro suffrage in this State and interference with the subject in others, and the suspension of the habeas corpus and favors the most rigid economy and equalization of taxes.

Duff Green Pardoned—South American News.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—The Post's Washington special says: The President has granted fifty pardons to-day, among them is Duff Green.

The World's Buenos Ayres correspondent, under date of Aug. 14th, says the Paraguayans are said to have 30,000 men under command of Lopez at Corrientes. There are three bodies of troops, varying from five to ten and twelve thousand each, commanded by other officers. They are progressing with but little interruption. They have no commissary stores, nor is there any flour, rice, sugar, coffee, soap, salt or wines or brandy. They have no camp equipage of any kind, and no ambulances or other wagons, except carts drawn by six oxen. These carts weigh, when employed, about two tons. Paraguayan soldiers fare principally on sheep and cattle, get no pay or share of the plunder. The latter of flocks and herds goes to the stock of the Government, and those who get wounded, it is their misfortune. Surgery is not very tolerated. The Allies, on the contrary, have comparatively perfect discipline, buy what they need, and are well equipped and fare well. The conflict will be of great interest. The war begins to seriously affect business in this city. The value of real estate has fallen. Stock for farms has greatly fallen in price. There is great scarcity of work, and hands by thousands have entered the army. The war has also retarded the developments of the interior. The effort made to sell the public lands since the war has been quite unsuccessful. Only one tract was sold, and that at about 70 cents per acre.

The Rebel Gen. Lee.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The World's Washington special says: The Richmond Whig of to-day states that Gen. Lee meets the Directors of Washington College on Wednesday, preparatory to his assuming the Presidency thereof.

New York Markets.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The merchandise market shows violent fluctuations. Various foreign goods are in demand. Provisions are a shade higher. White wheat continues to advance. Prices are very firm. Flour fifteen to twenty cents higher, the best grades selling at $11½ per bbl., medium at $8. Hides active. Wool steady, but there is no speculation in it; sales are made only to answer the wants of consumers; sales of 200,000 pounds California at 31@42 cents. Tallow has advanced within two days to 17¼ cents with a large export demand. Gold quiet. Foreign exchange firm. The leading banks ask 109½@110; sixth day bills 110½@111½ at three days. Stocks without animation; Quicksilver Mining 60; Mariposa 12.

The General Land Office has issued instructions to the Register at Marysville, Cal., informing him that selections of public land by States is not admissible from reserved lands, from mineral lands, nor from within the limits of the grant of Congress for the Pacific Railroad.

The American naval squadron in the Pacific is being reinforced by the addition of ten heavy armed vessels and two ironclads.

Juarez not Going to Leave Mexico.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—A contradiction of the report recently put afloat, evidently with a design to injure the cause of the Mexican Republic, that President Juarez designed leaving his country and seeking a refuge here, is contained in a letter from that distinguished ruler, dated El Paso, August 17th, received by a gentleman of this city. Juarez says he has no idea of abandoning his country or his country's cause. He had temporarily established a government at El Paso, but would soon take up his residence in one of the interior cities. He is determined to fulfil his duty of preserving the popular government, and does not despair of success.

Provisional Governor Appointed for Louisiana.

CAIRO, Sept. 19.—It is expected that Memphis will soon cease to be a military post. The New Orleans Delta learns that the President has appointed J. Madison Wells Provisional Governor of Louisiana, and given him the same authority as was invested in Governor Sharkey. The Delta thinks members for a State Convention can be elected within thirty days, and that an election for members of the Legislature, Congress and State offices, can take place before November. It hopes that Senators will be sent to Washington in time for the meeting of Congress.

The Prisoners at the Dry Tortugas—Trial of a Ship Captain—The Fenians.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Herald's correspondence writing from Tortugas says: Dr. Mudd is prison hospital nurse. Arnold is clerk in the Provost Marshal's office, and Spangler and O'Laughlin are working at their trades, carpentering in the Engineering Department.

The examination of the charges against Captain Anderson of the American emigrant ship Villa Franca, of Montreal, most of his passengers saying that he denied them sufficient food on the recent passage from London to this port commenced yesterday. The testimony of several of those who were passengers on the trip alluded to was taken. Their statements indicate gross ill treatment. A considerable portion of the food was said to be putrid.

At a Fenian meeting last evening in Jersey City one of the speakers declared that the movement was progressing finely, and that bank engravers were already at work on bonds for the Irish Republic.

From the South Carolina Convention.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—A telegram from Gov. Perry to President Johnson, dated Columbia, S. C., Sept. 18th says:

The Convention has repealed the ordinance of secession. The committee has reported in favor of abolishing slavery, equalizing representation, the election of governor and the Presidential electors by the people by voting viva voce. These measures will pass. Every thing is harmonious.

Wreck Near Cape Cod.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—During the gale yesterday the brig Cuncas Hopkins, of Eden, Maine, from Philadelphia for Boston, with coal, went ashore near Cape Cod and went to pieces. The Captain and one seaman were saved and five lost.

The South-Western Indians.

FORT SMITH, Sept. 19.—The difficulty between the loyal and disloyal Creeks has been amicably adjusted. Delegates from various tribes represented have signed a treaty with the Government with a note appended claiming now for lands, annuities, &c.

A Committee has been appointed to confer with the Cherokees and the Creeks, relative to the treaty for the recognition of the policy of the National Government. The Southern Cherokees adopted a report, stating that the Committee waited upon the Northern Cherokees to arrange their difficulties. The same delegation reported that about 6,000 Cherokees are in the Choctaw country and Red River in destitute circumstances. They asked counsel for relief. The Commission refused to recognize John Ross as Chief of the Cherokee nation, on account of his duplicity and bad faith. A paper has been submitted by the loyal Cherokee delegation asking the Commissioners to reprieve their actions.

FORT SMITH, Sept. 20.—The disloyal Choctaws and Seminoles have filed statements explanatory of the treaty. There is much destitution among the Seminoles. Seventy-seven loyal and 54 disloyal delegates (not including the chiefs) signed the treaty of peace.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Judge Jas. Steele, acting chief clerk of the Indian Bureau, leaves to-morrow to attend the council of Indian tribes on Little Arkansas river, to be held on the 30th day of October. There are indications that treaties of a very peaceable nature will be ratified there.

The Negro Troops.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Herald's special dispatch says that the whole number of negro troops mustered into service since the commencement of the war, was, in round numbers, 180,000. Their losses by deaths in the casualties, has greatly exceeded the proportion of whites, and amounts to fifty or sixty thousand; of the remainder, 120,000 have lately been ordered to be mustered out in the several departments. Those only are entitled to vote under the laws or regulations.

John Surratt—Applications for Pardon, &c.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Commercial Advertiser says: A Portland, Maine, merchant saw John H. Surratt in Montreal a week ago, and that he has been concealed for some time. On one occasion when the detectives were in close pursuit of him, he was secreted under the stairs of a church. It was believed in Montreal he would take passage for Glasgow on the steamer St. George to sail on Friday 15th.

The Post's special says: William M. Boyce, of South Carolina, has been pardoned. R. M. T. Hunter has gone to his home in Virginia on parole. Extra Billy Smith has also gone home. He has made application for pardon. The ex-rebel Gen. Pillow arrived at Washington to-day and has applied for pardon.

The Common Soldier

N[illegible] of whom the [illegible] the war

[illegible] he died with honor [illegible]
He was only a common soldier

Cleaving the gallant arm from shoulder;
And another name swells the pension list
For the meager pay of a common soldier

An empty sleeve in the soft wind sways
As he holds his lonely left hand out
For charity at the crossing ways

And this is how, with bitter shame
He [illegible] and [illegible]

The National Banking System

[From the Washington Chronicle.]

Soon after the outbreak of the great rebellion it became evident that the war could not be carried on upon a strictly specie basis, the Government must sooner or later resort to the use of paper money. It was wisely determined not to use the currency of the State banks, of different value in different States, based upon every possible kind of security and some upon no security, limited and governed by diverse laws, and in some States no limitation being placed upon the amount to be issued. The Northern banks as a rule, were loyal and ready to aid the Government for a sufficient consideration, notwithstanding it required some pretty severe skirmishing between them and the Secretary of the Treasury to obtain at first the requisite loans. The banks were anxious that the Government should use their paper but it was plain that the Government should not put itself in their power, and that the necessary purchases of supplies and war material at all points, could not be made with such currency nor the troops satisfactorily paid with it.

The result was an appeal to the people direct for loans, the issue of greenbacks, whose redemption was based upon the nation's faith to meet the present emergency, and finally national bank notes, based upon United States bonds, and guaranteed by the Government, redeemable at all the great commercial centres, and of nearly equal value in all parts of the country, as a permanent circulation, to supersede in the end State circulation and greenbacks, with a national banking system to provide for the circulation and redemption of the notes, and supply proper and safe depositories of the Government funds, and provide fiscal agents to be used in the collection and disbursement of the revenues levied to pay the war debt.

But why not have issued greenbacks direct, upon which no interest is paid by Government instead of guaranteeing the notes of National Banks? The answer to this question is forcibly put by the Secretary of the Treasury, then Comptroller of the Currency, in his report to Congress at the last session, and in the same connection he answers some of the general objections to paper money and to any connection of the Government with its issue. He says

"Paper money has been found to be useful, or rather an absolute necessity in all commercial countries for the convenient transaction of business, and as a circulating representative of value too large to be represented by coin. Although the fruitful cause of great evils, by reason of its unregulated use, and of its uncertain and frequently deceptive character, the general utility of it can hardly be questioned. Now, what is needed in a paper circulating medium is, that it should be convertible into coin; that it should be sufficient in amount to answer the purposes of legitimate business, that it should not, on the one hand, by being over-issued, encourage extravagance and speculation, and give an artificial and unreliable value to property, nor, on the other hand, by being reduced below the proper standard, interrupt business and unsettle values. It should be supplied to just the extent of the demands of a healthy trade. It should be increased as the regular business of the country may require its increase, and be diminished as the proper demand for it is diminished.

"It is not pretended that banks of issue have furnished this kind of circulation. Bank notes, with few exceptions, have been convertible into coin when there was no demand for coin, and inconvertible when there was. They have too generally been issued for the exclusive benefit of the bankers, and not for the convenience of the public, and they have encouraged speculation, when their true mission was to facilitate trade. It has been the bane of a bank note circulation that it has been expanded by the avarice of the bankers, and contracted by the distrust that over-issues have created.

"Now, this objection to a bank note circulation applies with much greater force to Government issues. There is always inducement enough for banks to keep up a full circulation, and against excessive issues there are the restrictions of law and the liability to red[illegible]. Government notes, in the issue thereof, would be regulated only by the necessities of the Government or the interests of the party in power. At one time they might be increased altogether beyond the needs of commerce and trade, thereby enhancing prices and inducing speculation; at another, they might be so reduced as to embarrass business and precipitate financial disasters. They would be incomparably worse in this respect than a bank note currency, because the power that should control circulation would be the power that furnishes it. Supplied by an authority not in sympathy with trade, they would not be accommodated to the requirements of trade. They might be the fullest in volume when there was the least need for a full circulation, and the most contracted when th[illegible] was a healthy demand for an inc[illegible]. They would eventually become an undesirable circulation, because there would be no way in which the redemption of them could be enforced. They would be a dangerous circulation, because they would be under the control of political parties, an unreliable circulation, because, having no connection with trade and commerce, they would not be regulated by their necessities.

"There are objections to all kinds of paper money, but, in some form, it is a commercial necessity and no form has yet been contrived so little objectionable as that which is authorized by the National Currency act. Under this act the Government performs its proper functions by exercising one of its constitutional powers for the regulation of commerce by fixing the maximum of bank note circulation, securing its solvency and giving to it nationality of character and uniformity of value. It takes the promises, which are to go among the people through the National Banks, puts its seal upon them and guarantees their redemption, as it takes the precious ore from the mines, the property of individuals, coins it into money of the United States and fixes the value thereof. It thus performs the proper office of Government. In doing so it interferes with no State rights, meddles with no man's lawful pursuits. It stands between the bankers and the people, and while it protects the latter from imposition in the use of a bank note currency it trespasses upon no privileges of the former. Without becoming a banker, and without, as in the case of the charter of the United States Bank conferring peculiar if not dangerous privileges upon a single corporation it provides a national circulation indispensable for its own use and safety in the collection of its internal revenues and suited to the circumstances of the country."

Although the paragraphs above quoted from Mr. McCulloch's report concisely define the difference between the present national currency system and the old United States Bank system it may be well to enlarge a little upon this point. The United States Bank was an immense corporation, by many esteemed a huge monopoly, controlled by a few men wielding a power sufficient to control legislation and the politics of the country, a dangerous power and liable to abuse without raising the question whether it was in fact abused or not. There were no securities pledged for the redemption of its notes—no guarantee of Government for their payment. The national banking system on the contrary is open and free to all. Any five respectable persons having the requisite means to purchase the stock may organize a bank at any place in the United States where banking facilities are required and not only are the notes and Government deposits secured, but a reserve of lawful money is required to be kept by the banks for the safety of individual deposits.

The National Banks are owned and managed by men of all parties. Three-fourths of the directors must be residents of the State where the bank is located, and as a rule the owners are residents in the vicinity of the bank. No combination can therefore exist to influence politics, and if a single bank should lend its influence to aid any political party the probabilities are that a [illegible] would be immediately organized by men of opposite opinions to counteract its influence, or by prudent management to drive it from the field.

So far as known the stock of National Banks is all owned by citizens of the United States, and it is not likely [illegible] the dangerous foreign influence existing in the case of the United States Branch bank by reason of the application to foreigners to [illegible] make up her immense capital.

While however the National Banks are thus free from [illegible] politics they have an important [illegible] influence in one respect. The banks [illegible] and [illegible] large amounts of United States bonds as security for circulation and deposits. The circulation is based upon National bonds alone. For every dollar in circulation from one dollar and ten cents to two dollars in bonds are on deposit with the Treasurer of the United States thus forming an immense home market for our own securities and preventing their being sent abroad. Every stockholder and every billholder has thereby a direct tangible pecuniary interest not only in the maintenance of the Government and the union of the States, but also in maintaining the faith and credit of the Government. There is no danger of repudiation while the National banking system is in force. It is safe to say that had there been such a system before the war there never would have been a rebellion. The banks could not have been brought to make war upon the Government and the sinews of war could not have been procured without their aid.

The holder of a National Bank note would lose nothing if the bank were to fail; the Government would then pay it on presentation, or accept it in payment of taxes or other dues than customs, and every other bank is bound by law to receive it at par in payment of a debt. The Government would lose nothing for it holds in its own possession its own bonds amply sufficient to remunerate itself. But some not acquainted with the details of the law may ask, "May not dishonest clerks or Government employees steal those bonds deposited in such immense amounts, or may they not be destroyed by fire or other casualties? In answer it is only necessary to explain that the bonds are all registered bonds issued to the Treasurer of the United States in trust for the bank, and containing upon them a memorandum signed by the Comptroller of the Currency stating that they are deposited with the Treasurer as security for the bills of the bank, and thus are only transferable on the books of the Register of the Treasury upon the order of the bank and upon assignment of the Treasurer countersigned by the Comptroller of the Currency. The bank holds the Treasurer's receipt specifying every bond in detail. The bonds are entered in the Treasurer's books, Comptroller's books and are examined yearly by an officer of the bank. If stolen they would be of no possible use to the thief and if destroyed or lost or stolen, it would only be necessary to stop payment upon the old and issue new certificates of the same kind.

The National system is now substantially the banking system of the country. At first the banks looked upon it with distrust as upon a new thing, but gradually they have become convinced of its advantages or satisfied by the refusal of the people to accept their State bank issues that it was necessary to unite in it and support it, and it is believed that none have had reason to regret their union with the system. The stocks of State banks converted have in no known instance been depreciated, but, on the contrary many have been highly appreciated by the change.

To Massachusetts is due the credit of first passing a judicious enabling act for the change of her State banks to National associations, to the city of Philadelphia the organization of the first National bank, and she was also the first city to complete the conversion of all her State banks to National associations. New York was delayed a year by Governor Seymour pocketing the enabling act passed a year ago last winter, but since the passage of the law of last winter her banks have almost made up for the lost time by the rapidity of their changing. The great West has availed itself of the law to the fullest extent, and even the South has called for banks at all prominent points as fast as our armies could get a foothold during the war, and since it is ended there is no place of importance in all the South that has not its application on file for a National Bank, showing the ready appreciation of our Southern friends of the system, their confidence in the Government, and their willingness to invest their means in its securities. No banks have yet completed their organization in any of the Pacific States, but several are now in process of organization in Oregon and California, and one in Washington Territory. Utah, Nevada, Arizona, and New Mexico, have papers on file, in short there is no State or Territory in which banks are not organized or in process of organization.

To Mr. Chase is principally due the organization of the system, and to the present Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. McCulloch, the present improved law, and the skill and wisdom with which the system was brought into successful operation up to the time when he turned its management over to the present Comptroller, Hon. Freeman Clark of New York, who has soundly continued what his predecessor had begun. It would be unjust in this connection to omit to mention of S. T. Howard, Esq., Deputy Comptroller, for whose wise counsel and assistance both Mr. McCulloch and Mr. Clarke acknowledge themselves to have been greatly indebted.

For the results obtained the country has reason to congratulate itself.

A PRACTICAL ARGUMENT. We clip the following article from the Pittsburg Commercial. It is worth consideration as being a sound argument in favor of the true system of manufactures of a proper protection policy.

The Detroit Tribune, an excellent journal, though not entirely sound on the Tariff question, is urging Eastern capitalists to come to the West and build woolen manufactures. As regards woolen manufactures, it says: "The West offers a yet more inviting field. Why in the name [illegible] [illegible] the great bulk of the wool [illegible] pounds of wool which Michigan annually [illegible] to the East at a heavy expense, or [illegible] to the West when manufactured? Those capitalists who shall engage in woolen manufacture in the West will put the Eastward and Westward [illegible] Western wool in their own pockets as a small portion of their gains. What the West now wants [illegible] [illegible] manufactures, as a New England [illegible] New England capitalists [illegible] [illegible]"

The Tribune states the case truthfully, but it ought to know that [illegible]

[illegible]

Michigan wants New England [illegible] [illegible] instead of taking the wool and further [illegible] New England [illegible] brought back in cloth. [illegible]

[illegible]

DEMOCRATIC [illegible] [illegible]

THE FIRST [illegible]

[illegible]

A Confederate soldier named Pollack returned recently to his home in Marshall county, Mississippi, and finding his wife married to one McCarty at once shot McCarty, the wife and himself. McCarty was killed, Pollack was dying at last accounts, and the wife had got well, and was looking around for another husband.

THE CHARGES AGAINST WIRTZ.—The following are the charges and specifications on which Wirtz the Andersonville jailor is now being tried.

Charge: Violation of the laws of war.

Specification 1. In this that Henry Wirtz, at Andersonville, in the State of Georgia, [illegible] on or [illegible] the first day of March 1864, [illegible] the tenth day of April 1865 then and there being an officer in the military service of the so-called Confederate States of America, with the rank of Captain, [illegible] in such office then and there being [illegible] commandant of a prison there located by the authority of the so-called Confederate States for the confinement of prisoners of war taken and held by the so-called Confederate States from the armies of the United States of America, was as such commandant, then and there fully clothed with competent authority, and in duty bound to [illegible] care and provide for such persons belonging to the United States as were [illegible] in his custody as prisoners of war, according to the laws and usages of war, which he then and there well knew, but he, the said Henry Wirtz, willfully and maliciously, designing and contriving to impair and injure the health and destroy the lives of such persons in his custody as prisoners of war, did during the time aforesaid, in violation of his duty in that regard and in furtherance of his said evil design, confine a large number of such prisoners of war, belonging to the United States, to the amount of thirty thousand men, in unhealthy and unwholesome quarters, in a close and small area of ground, wholly inadequate to their wants and destructive to their health, which he well knew and intended; and while there confined during the time aforesaid did, in furtherance of his evil design, willfully and maliciously neglect to furnish tents, barracks or other shelter sufficient for their protection from the inclemency of Winter, and the dews and burning sun of Summer; and with such evil intent did take and cause to be taken from them their clothing, blankets and camp equipage of which they were possessed at the time of being placed in his custody; and with like malice and evil intent did refuse to furnish, or cause to be furnished, food either of quality or quantity sufficient to preserve health or sustain life, and refuse and neglect to furnish wood sufficient for cooking in summer and to keep the said prisoners warm in Winter, and did compel the said prisoners to subsist upon unwholesome food and that in limited quantities entirely inadequate to sustain health, which he well knew, and did compel the said prisoners to use unwholesome water, with the filth and garbage of the prison and prison guard, whereby the said prisoners became greatly reduced in their bodily strength and emaciated and injured in their bodily health—their minds impaired and their intellects broken, and many of them whose names are unknown sickened and died by reason thereof, which the said Henry Wirtz then and there well knew and intended, and so knowing and evilly intending did refuse and neglect to provide proper lodgings, food or nutriment for sick and necessary medicine and medical attendance for restoration of their health and did knowingly, willfully and maliciously in furtherance of their evil designs permit them to languish and die for want of care and proper treatment, and when dead the said Henry Wirtz, still pursuing his evil purpose did permit to remain in the said prison among the emaciated sick and languishing living the bodies of the dead, until they became corrupt and loathsome and filled the air with noxious effluvia and thereby increased unwholesomeness of prison insomuch that great numbers of the prisoners whose names are unknown sickened and died by reason thereof. All which he the said Henry Wirtz then and there well knew and evilly and maliciously designed and intended. Specification second charges the prisoner with "willfully and maliciously intending and designing to injure the health and destroy lives of prisoners under his control to the end that the armies of the United States might be weakened and impaired thereby." In the third specification he is charged with maliciously ordering, causing, procuring and inciting soldiers in the service of the so called Confederate States to shoot and kill such persons as were in his custody as prisoners of war upon slight, trivial and fictitious pretenses by means whereof large numbers of soldiers from the armies of the United States were wantonly killed and murdered while prisoners of war. In the fourth specification Wirtz is accused of willfully and with malice aforethought killing and murdering defenceless prisoners. The fifth and last specification charges him with keeping and using ferocious and blood thirsty beasts, dangerous to human life called blood hounds, to hunt down prisoners of war who had escaped his custody and did thus and there willfully and maliciously suffer the said beasts to seize, tear, mangle and maim the bodies and limbs of fugitives which they there and then did, whereby large numbers of prisoners of war who did during the time aforesaid make their escape, and were recaptured, were cruelly and inhumanly injured and great numbers died by reason of such inhuman treatment which said Henry Wirtz then and there well knew and evilly intended.

HOLLAND.—No description can convey the slightest idea of the way that Holland has been gathered particle after particle out of the waste of waters of the strange aspect of the country and the increasing vigilance and wondrous precautions by which it is preserved. Holland is in the fullest extent, an alluvium of the sea. It consists of mud and sands rescued from the ocean, and banked up on all sides. Produced by the most dexterous and indefatigable exertions, it can be maintained only by artificial means. If the efforts by which it was redeemed from the waters were to be relaxed, the ocean would re-assert its right, and the whole kingdom would be submerged. The slightest accident might sweep Holland into the deep. It was once undermined by an insect. Indeed the necessity of destroying insects is so urgent that the stork, a great feeder on them, is actually held in veneration, and almost every species of bird is religiously protected by law. The drift of all this is palpable enough. But it is curious that the very existence of a great country depends on such guarantees.—Bentley's Miscellany.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD, heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction [illegible] MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate [illegible], although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.
